Measuring your spa

Measuring your spa is not difficult, with a little patience and help from a friend you will have accurate measurements in no time.

What you will need:

1. You will need two or three straight edges approximately one metre long any object with a straight edge, piece of wood, plastic or metal will do.
2. A tape measure with metric units.
3. Somebody to hold the other end of the tape for you (it is also a good idea to have this second person double check all your measurements).

Which measurements?

As few as three measurements may be required for your particular shaped spa, once again it is highly recommended that you ask us at Australian Spa Covers for a measuring sheet that is specific to your spa's shape.

Mandatory measurements

1. Length and width of your spa - it is important to check that your spa has the same length and width even if it looks the same.
2. Lip style & height of the lip - all spas are not the same.
3. Radius of corners - any spa with rounded corners will need to have the radius measured. This is the most difficult of all measurements. Please ask for advice if you have difficulty with this measurement. Please refer to the definition of an extended corner and the radius of corners diagrams for more information.

Definition - Extended Corners

When a spa has a curved or radius corner, the extended corner is where the sides would meet had the corner not been curved.

Extended Corner

Measuring length and width

Measure across the spa, outside edge to outside edge. Use an upright ruler to allow for any flare in the lip.

Lip style & height of lip

Use the diagrams to work out what lip style you have - this will help us work out what type of straps to include.

Use a ruler or straight edge to measure the length of the skirt required on your cover.

Strap placement

Our Roll-On spa covers are reinforced with fiberglass supports spaced every 300mm to 400mm, depending on the length of the cover. Straps are secured to every second or third support, which means we cannot offer custom strap placement for these covers. The straps are screwed into the fiberglass supports, making them removable if desired.

Radius of corners

Measure from the extended corner (i.e. where the sides would meet if the spa were square) to where the spa touches your straight edge.
